FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1886.

THE ROADS.

The roads in some places are improved by such a heavy wash of rain as the present one, where light showers only make them abominable in the extreme. A good deluge washes off the mud, leaving a hard surface exposed where the soft material is not altogether bottomless. It is a foolish waste of money, this continual piling up of roadways with earth that makes the dust nuisance in dry weather and the mud abomination in wet. Much better would it be, besides more economical in the long run, to have each year a mile of road built solid enough to last a generation with little or no repairs, than to have twenty miles made as unsubstantial as children's mud pies. The new Minister of the Interior can win an enduring reputation for practical wisdom by inaugurating a change in the methods of road-making, taking advantage of the established science within reach on that subject. Let only a little be done at a time if much cannot be afforded, and let the rest in the meantime do with a little trimming down of protuberances; but, at all events, have no more renewing of mud causeways and calling them roads or streets.

"THE SOLID SOUTH."

The new Governor of Georgia has, whether of his own accord or not it is impossible at this distance to tell, given rather ostentatious utterance to the doctrine of State rights which caused the war. Along with this news comes information showing that race prejudice in the South is still very tenacious of life, it appearing that Texas planters are discussing the subject of dispensing with colored labor next season. These manifestations and all similar ones will tend to solidify the North for the Republican party at the next Presidential election as well as intervening Congressional contests.

CHEAP FAME.

Nicholas Flood Davin, Hawaiian Vice-Consul at Regina (formerly called "Pile of Bones"), Northwest Territory of Canada, is going to run for the Dominion Parliament. As he gets the Honolulu Advertiser regularly, he may make himself famous by copying a frill or two from Hawaiian legislative practice. He could make the Canuck statesmen stare, for instance, by changing front on the most important questions almost as often as he changed his shirt, in emulation of the champion "follow and draw" shot at the Hawaiian political billiard table.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Cable communication prospects are assuming a practical shape. The Pacific Cable Company, with a capital of £2,000,000, is advertised in London.

Assault and battery cases seem to be on the increase. The Japanese bid fair, in this species of offense and drunkenness, to come up to the Chinese record for opium and gambling.

David Kennedy, who sang Scottish songs several times round the world, latterly assisted by his musical family, died recently. He had many imitators but few if any peers in rendering the quaint ballads of the heather.

A short time ago the HERALD said a free trade policy was inevitable in the United States. Almost at the same instant Mr. Carlisle, speaker of the American House of Representatives, was expressing similar views. Great minds run in grooves, as our learned friend the Colonel across the street would say.

If the police do not keep the hoodlum under close watch, that element will make trouble here before very long. A crowd of roughs kicked and cuffed an inoffensive young Chinaman in a cowardly fashion, in front of the Bell Tower when the procession was forming the other night, and they were not interfered with by anybody.

The Vermont House of Representatives has passed a bill granting suffrage to women by a vote of 135 to 82. Who would have thought the Green Mountain State was so radical? It will probably be found, however, there as in some other places where woman suffrage has been granted, that women will prove they are sensible enough to vote by abstaining from taking any part in politics.

Hotel Arrivals.

A dispute has arisen as to the height of the iron tower to be the feature of the Paris Exposition of 1889. It was originally proposed to run it up 1,500 feet, but it is objected to on account that it would dwarf every other structure in Paris. A test is to be made by sending up a captive balloon to the proposed height and suspending therefrom four cables, which will represent the four edges of the tower, flags being affixed to mark the positions of the several stories.

A Dakota widow sold her land claim for a horse, and when the buyer platted a town and made $20,000 in a year, she came forward with a breach-of-promise suit, which is still pending. She says she's got rights which speculators must respect.

During a recent panic at the Pilgrimage church, Vienna, Austria, fifteen persons were crushed to death.
